FUNDED RESEARCH, CONTRACTS, AND COMMUNITY GRANTS

Department of Criminal Justice Services, Virginia Sexual and Domestic Violence Victim Fund/ Edward Byrne Justice Assistance Grant. July 1, 2021 – June 30, 2022. Cramer serves as Principal Investigator for joint submission, School of Social Work and Partnership for People with Disabilities. Awarded a total of $31,330 for the I-CAN! Accessibility Continuation Project. Project goals for this fiscal year include to update and disseminate the project's booklet, Understanding Protective Orders in Richmond, VA, and the ASL version of the Richmond-focused and statewide videos; to lay the groundwork for an ECHO focused on supporting agencies and community members who are serving people with disabilities who are being abused; and to research possible funding opportunities to sustain the project after this fiscal year. Additionally, the project will continue to hold Advisory Board meetings.

Department of Criminal Justice Services, Virginia Sexual and Domestic Violence Victim Fund, July 1, 2020 – June 30, 2021. Cramer serves as Principal Investigator for joint submission, School of Social Work and Partnership for People with Disabilities. Awarded a total of $31,330 for the I-CAN! Accessibility Continuation Project. Project goals for this fiscal year are to update and support the online training modules on supporting abuse survivors with disabilities, developed for domestic and sexual violence advocates. Additionally, the project's booklet, Understanding Protective Orders in Richmond, VA, will be re-printed and disseminated, and the project will continue to hold Advisory Board meetings.

Virginia Board for People with Disabilities. Awarded $89,252 (total project $119,009 inclusive of match) for Ensuring Accessibility for All Survivors. August 1, 2019 – July 31, 2021. Cramer serves as co-Principal Investigator. The purpose of this project is to enhance the information available about abuse and orders of protection to people who use American Sign Language to communicate and are survivors of abuse in Virginia, as well as to the staff who support them at the Virginia Department of Deaf and Hard of Hearing.

National Institute of Justice, Rutgers Violence Against Women Research Consortium. Awarded $74,026 for Criminal Justice and Victim Services Prevention and Intervention Responses to Domestic Violence Victims with Disabilities and Deaf People. September 1, 2019 – June 30, 2020. Cramer serves as co-Principal Investigator. The purpose of this project is to examine the current state of criminal justice and victim services prevention and intervention responses to domestic violence against people with disabilities and Deaf people in the United States. Findings will be disseminated through a peer-reviewed journal article, a research brief, infographics, blog postings, and social media written to inform practitioners of practices in working with victims with disabilities and deaf victims.

Virginia Department of Behavioral Health and Developmental Services. DBHDS Family to Family and LEAP. March 1, 2018 – February 28, 2019. Contract awarded to the Partnership for People with Disabilities for $77,614 to develop and pilot a companion training session to the Leadership for Empowerment and Abuse Prevention (LEAP) program for staff who support people with disabilities and to build capacity of LEAP trainers on a statewide basis. Cramer serves as co-Principal Investigator.

U.S. Department of Justice Office on Violence Against Women FY17 Research and Evaluation Solicitation. November 1, 2017 – October 31, 2020. Awarded $400,000 for Evaluation of LEAP (Leadership for Empowerment and Abuse Prevention): A Healthy Relationships Curriculum for People with Intellectual and Developmental Disabilities. Cramer serves as co-Principal Investigator for joint submission, Partnership for People with Disabilities and School of Social Work. The purpose of this project is to conduct a rigorous, mixed-method evaluation of the LEAP program to produce an evidence-based intervention to teach people with intellectual and developmental disabilities about healthy and unhealthy relationships and what to do if they are in an unhealthy relationship.

Department of Criminal Justice Services, Virginia Sexual and Domestic Violence Victim Fund, July 1, 2017 – June 30, 2020. Cramer serves as Principal Investigator for joint submission, School of Social Work and Partnership for People with Disabilities. Awarded a total of $93,990 for three years for the I-CAN! Accessibility Continuation Project. During year one, in collaboration with the Brain Injury Association of Virginia, the project developed an advanced knowledge and skills training on the connection between disabilities and abuse, including traumatic brain injury, working with survivors with disabilities, and resources for support for YWCA-Richmond staff, which was piloted and evaluated in year two. Additionally in year two, the project updated and re-printed a booklet about how to obtain a protective order in collaboration with the Virginia Poverty Law Center. In year three, the project will develop a webinar series for staff at Virginia domestic and sexual violence agencies on the connection between disabilities and abuse based on feedback from the pilot training at the YWCA-Richmond.

Throughout all three years, the project will receive updates about the I-CAN! modules and serve as a resource to the Office of the Executive Secretary of the Supreme Court of Virginia.

Department of Criminal Justice Services, Virginia Sexual and Domestic Violence Victim Fund, July 1, 2015 – June 30, 2017. Cramer served as Principal Investigator for joint submission, School of Social Work and Partnership for People with Disabilities. Awarded a total of $62,660 for two years for the I-CAN! Accessibility Continuation Project. During year one, the project updated and re-printed a booklet about how to obtain a protective order in collaboration with the Virginia Poverty Law Center. In collaboration with Mill House/Community Brain Injury services, a curriculum was developed to train staff at all the brain injury services organizations in Virginia about abuse and community supports, which was modeled after our successful training for Mill House staff members. The training was delivered and evaluated in year two.

VCU Presidential Research Quest Fund, July, 2015, - December, 2016 (cost extension until 6/30/17). VCU School of Social Work and Partnership for People with Disabilities. Awarded $50,000. Cramer served as Principal Investigator. This study, Pilot Project for LEAP Fidelity of Implementation, developed protocols and monitoring tools to assess fidelity of implementation and measurement for change in participant outcomes for LEAP, an abuse prevention program for people with intellectual and developmental disabilities.

VCU Community Engagement Grant, July, 2015 – June, 2016. VCU Partnership for People with Disabilities, VCU School of Social Work, and VCU Department of Rehabilitation Counseling, in partnership with Heart Havens and the Virginia Anti-Violence Project. Awarded $19,766 from the VCU Council for Community Engagement for a project entitled, Expanding Healthy Relationships in Central Virginia. Cramer served as co-Principal Investigator. Through this project, an interdisciplinary group of 8 VCU students participated in Leadership for Empowerment and Abuse Prevention (LEAP), a healthy relationships program for persons with intellectual and developmental disabilities. VCU partners collaborated with Heart Havens and the Virginia Anti-Violence Project to train VCU students to implement and evaluate the LEAP curriculum.

Virginia Board for Persons with Disabilities, October, 2013 – September, 2015. Awarded $178,125 for the two-year grant period. Cramer served as co-Principal Investigator on Leadership for Empowerment and Abuse Prevention (LEAP), a project to teach people with developmental and other disabilities about healthy relationships and how to better protect themselves from sexual assault, abuse, neglect, and violence.

Department of Criminal Justice Services, Virginia Sexual and Domestic Violence Victim Fund, January, 2013-June, 2015. Cramer served as Principal Investigator for joint submission, School of Social Work and Partnership for People with Disabilities. Awarded a total of $62,670 for two years (and additional $15,665 for 6 month extension while funder moves to a state fiscal year cycle) for the I-CAN! Accessibility Continuation Project. The project continued its work to make the I-CAN! programs more accessible to persons with disabilities. In collaboration with the Brain Injury Association of Virginia, the project conducted roundtable discussions about abuse and community resources to staff and members of Mill House, a clubhouse for survivors of brain injury, and developed a YouTube video geared toward providing information about abuse and community resources to survivors of brain injury and other cognitive disabilities.

VCU Community Engagement Grant, July, 2013 – June, 2014. VCU Art Education Department and VCU School of Social Work, in partnership with the Neighborhood Resource Center (NRC) and Transitions Day Support Services. Awarded $19,766 from the VCU Council for Community Engagement. Cramer served as co-Principal Investigator on the award. Through this project entitled, Food Landscapes: A nutrition and arts-focused service-learning project for youth at the Neighborhood Resource Center, VCU faculty and students developed and evaluated a multifaceted program for youth at the NRC. Documenting their experiences throughout using Flip video cameras, NRC youth learned cooking techniques and subsequently planned and taught cooking lessons to adults with disabilities at Transitions Day Support Center. NRC youth also conducted tours of food-related art at the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts for Transitions adults. VCU faculty and students studied the effects of this program on the NRC youth.

Department of Criminal Justice Services, Virginia Sexual and Domestic Violence Victim Fund, 2011-2012. Cramer served as Principal Investigator for joint submission, School of Social Work and Partnership for People with Disabilities. Awarded a total of $61,493 for two years for the I-CAN! Accessibility Continuation Project. The project continued and expanded upon its work to make the I-CAN! programs more accessible to persons with disabilities and trained courthouse clerks on the experiences and needs of abused persons with disabilities.

VCU Center for Teaching Excellence. Joint Faculty Learning Community with Norfolk State University on Addressing Issues of Diversity and Oppression in the Classroom. Academic year 2009 – 2010.

Department of Criminal Justice Services, Virginia Sexual and Domestic Violence Victim Fund, 2009-2010. Cramer served as Principal Investigator for joint submission, School of Social Work and Partnership for People with Disabilities. Awarded a total of $62,957 for two years for the I-CAN! Accessibility Continuation Project. The project continued and expanded upon its work to make the I-CAN! program more accessible to persons with disabilities and enhanced the capacity of disability service professionals to provide assistance to abused persons with disabilities.

Department of Criminal Justice Services, Virginia Sexual and Domestic Violence Victim Fund, 2007-2008. Cramer served as Principal Investigator for joint submission, School of Social Work and Partnership for People with Disabilities. Awarded a total of $79,927 for two years for the I-CAN Accessibility Project. The primary purpose of the project was to make Family Abuse Protective Orders easier to obtain for people with disabilities through the I-CAN Online system of the Supreme Court of Virginia. The project worked with people with disabilities and law enforcement and court personnel to improve accessibility to protective orders. The project piloted a program that trained professionals to help people with disabilities to obtain protective orders and to serve as a resource in cases of abuse not addressed through the orders.

Ford Foundation, Difficult Dialogues Program, 2006-2008. Virginia consortium proposal awarded $10,000 to participate in the initiative. Held a successful statewide conference on March 3, 2007 entitled "Network VA: Building LGBTQ Coalitions for Change on Campus."

VCU Center for Teaching Excellence (faculty teaching grant, $3,440), 2003-2004, took the lead on submission of grant proposal and implementation of project. The goals were: (A) To enhance teaching comfort and effectiveness in the areas of diversity and social justice by sponsoring a university-wide lecture for faculty, staff, and doctoral students entitled "What Makes Our Teaching 'Anti-Oppressive'?: A Critical Overview of Research and Practice." (B) To provide advanced strategies for teaching social justice and diversity content in social work courses by sponsoring an interactive workshop for School of Social Work faculty and doctoral students entitled "When Students Resist: Troubling Views of Crisis, Uncertainty, and Progressive Change." Both presentations featured Dr. Kevin Kumashiro, M.A., Ph.D., Director of the Center for Anti-Oppressive Education and Senior Program Specialist in the Human and Civil Rights Division of the National Education Association.

Office on Women's Health, Department of Health and Human Services (contract administered through University of Maine, $25,000).
